South Hill Park and Reading Guild of Artists announce new exhibition Sense of Space

South Hill Park have been in collaboration with the Reading Guild of Artists and are excited to announce a new exhibition, Sense of Space, from Sat 9 April – Sun 22 May. Visitors will be able to explore this new exhibition in the Balcony and Atrium Gallery at South Hill Park.

The invitation to make artworks for Sense of Space has presented the Reading Guild of Artists with a challenge to create something new and exciting whilst responding to the concept of sense and space. From paintings and textiles to ceramics and installations, this exhibition encourages the viewer to look, see and connect with some of the feelings the artists have attempted to portray in their work. Both the Reading Guild of Artists and South Hill Park hope that the wide variety of art works on display, the range of subject matter depicting a sense of space, and the joy of experiencing ‘art in the flesh’ will be a source of great pleasure for all who come to visit.

Exhibitions Secretary of the Reading Guild of Artists Trish Roberts said ‘It is an honour to have been invited to work on this project with South Hill Park. This exhibition has been many months in the planning and I am sure our viewing public will be thrilled with the results’.

South Hill Park will be holding a Preview on Thu 7 April and Meet the Artist on Sun 15 May as complimentary events to the exhibition. These are both free but booking is required. You can book via the South Hill Park website - www.southhillpark.org.uk. For more information about the work that the Reading Guild of Artists do, visit their website - www.rga-artists.org.uk.
