Reading Guild of Artists' new online Exhibition 'while we wait' is open!

The Reading Guild of Artists (RGA) is pleased to announce a new online Exhibition 'while we wait'. There are plans for exhibitions during 2021 but while we wait the RGA is now offering two online exhibition experiences, the new show just released. Multi-media artist and acting Chair of the RGA, Paul Woolley's work Bilbao Landscape was used for the eye-catching poster.

Members of the RGA have again come up trumps with a wonderful selection of work for everyone to enjoy. Included are pieces by members who joined last year, who haven't yet had the opportunity to exhibit with the Guild 'physically'. Already the response has been very positive, with accolades such as 'what a splendid show, beautifully presented and fun to wander through the rooms'.

Ever the artist - with an eye for detail, past RGA Chair, Anthony Wilder congratulated curator Martina Hildebrandt on her skill in presenting this 'exciting new collection with a great balance of colour, texture and subject matter'. Anthony was also quick to notice that a number of members had taken the opportunity to 'break new ground'.

So while we wait for a 'real gallery experience' let us take a look at the RGA website and enjoy a taste of what we can look forward to from the artists of the RGA later in the year.
